

CONSERVATION WALKS

The village of Bittesby was recorded in the Domesday Book. In 1279 the village had 25 families but depopulation occurred in 1494 and by 1536 only one family, the Salisburys, was left. The earthworks that remain today consist mainly of hollow ways and house platforms although at the northern end of the site an area of faced stonework shows where a chapel once stood

This access has been provided under the Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs' farm conservation schemes, which help farmers and land managers protect and improve the countryside, its wildlife and history. It is permissive access and no new rights of way are being created. Existing rights of way are not affected. Please follow the Country Code and observe any other requirements shown above. Do not disturb wildlife, livestock or other visitors and in particular keep dogs under control. This is working farmland so please take care; people using this site do so at their own risk. Access ends in September 2007.
